

We love the warmth the walnut injects into a highly modern kitchen design.

SUSPENDED IN TIME

"More and more, people are looking for quality and durability. I think that's why there's a move towards rediscovering traditional elements such as wood, glass and metal in contemporary designs. In this kitchen, we used classic components reinvented to create a modern-looking space. You won't find any lacquers or laminates in this cutting-edge kitchen! The cabinetry is a combination of beautifully rich natural walnut beside timber-mounted bronze glass, with completely solid walnut internal fixtures guaranteeing quality inside and out. The walnut is also used for the breakfast bar, finished with a transparent panel of glass supporting one end to give the illusion of suspension. In keeping with this theme, we wanted the overhead cabinets to look as if they were floating, so we suspended them from the ceiling, generating a light, airy feel. For the same reason, bronze glass was used for the upper cabinets to give a subtle reflective appearance. The Dekton 12mm benchtop follows the ultra-modern trend of thin benches, contrasting well with the classic touches – a durable dark surface that allows the walnut and bronze glass to shine. Technically superior internal hardware ensures that the 'float effect' is experienced physically as well as visually, with automated opening installed on all overhead cabinets. The end result is a design grounded in tradition that soars above expectation."
