DETAILS

Germany's premium kitchen manufacturer Poggenpohl has developed together with Hamburg architect Hadi Teherani the new +ARTESIO® kitchen concept that brings together furniture design, wall, floor and ceiling in an architectural melting pot. This fusion now provides the core for the new +ARTESIO® kitchen concept. The pioneering program is a gesture into the room. It unites the hitherto customary divide between furniture design and room architecture. It's no longer a case of fitting kitchen furniture into an existing space in the best way possible, but of re-defining this space completely new through the kitchen concept.

In addition to various design prizes, the latest +ARTESIO® kitchen concept has also received the coveted international "red dot: best of the best" award from the Design Zentrum Nordrhein Westfalen. The award, meanwhile, the third, for the +ARTESIO® that was created jointly by Hamburg-based star architect Hadi Teherani and Poggenpohl, underscores the brand's design expertise. The innovation kitchen concept offers an integrated solution that fuses furniture design, wall, floor and ceiling together architecturally. The result is an integrated space concept in which the aspects of building, architecture, home and kitchen all coalesce. The award-winning design of the +ARTESIO® kitchen is defined by an innovation function arch. This produces an entirely new feeling of space that not only turns the kitchen into the centre of home life but also builds a visual bridge between cooking and living.

International acclaim

Poggenpohl designs and ranges have amassed many international awards through the decades, a reflection of more than 120 years of design innovation. Timeless design, attention to detail and enduring quality have given Poggenpohl a global reputation. Awards and accolades confirm the company's pre-eminence; a Poggenpohl kitchen represents a fusion of form with function that transcends fashion.
